THE MERRY MASKERS.

The Arion and Beethoven Societies' Masquerado Balls.

BOTH WERE HELD LAST NIGHT

And in Point of Brilliancy, Enjoyment and All Around Success Were 'Unbeatable"-The Arion Comes to the Front With an Innovation-The Beethoven's Quarto-centenary .- Other social Events.

WO masque balls on one ovening by wo of the leading German societies of the city, the Arion Society and the Beethoven Singing Society, is an unusual occurrence, but the fact that they both occurred last evening did not detract from the attendance, brilliancy or general success of either.

The Arion's "carneval and maskenball" will probably be remembered as one of the most brilliant and successful and best attended of any of the many affairs of a similar character given by this prominent German social organization. The costumes, brought from Baltimore especially for the occasion, were even unusually fine, and attracted comment on all sides. The attendence was first class, probably reaching a number beyond any other ball under the auspices of the society. The hall and nuriors were decorated tastefully and to good effect. Lastly the Opera House Orchesof the society. The hall and nariors were decorated tastefully and to good effect. Lastly the Opera House Orchestra discoursed such music as has made the name of the organization famous. These were the concomitant features that made the evening's entertainment one to be remembered.

At 8:30 o'clock the maskers, together with the prince of the carnival, Mr. Carl Goetz, and the committees on reception, arrangement and dancing, formed in the parlors on the lower floor, and the opening march to the dance hall on the uppor floor was started. On arrival in the latter apartment, which was beautifully decorated with green and pink bunting on the walls, the prince of the carnival ascended to the stage, after which the president of the society, Mr. Louis C. Stifel, presented to the prince the golden key of the Arion entitling the maskers to the freedom of the hall for the evening. By the way, the Arions have followed with historical accuracy the old carnival customs of Italy of three or lour centuries ago, and do not allow the prince the privilege of having a princess. This is an innovation which may or may not be adopted by other societies. After the key had been delivered the grand march followed, and the scene was certainly a vest prilliant one. After that conclude!, the first waltz opened and the evening's terpishorean programme was fairly started. was fairly started.

The costumes of the coinmittee on dancing were of the style worn by the court pages of the sixteenth century. The costumes worn by the committee on arrangements were of various styles, including the striking one of the Scottish highlander.

The committees to whom much of the credit for the success of the affair is due were as follows:

with anticipated pleasure by the members and their numerous friends for many weeks past. The ball took place at the hall of the society on Fourteenth street last evening, and needless to say nobody was disappointed—the affair was an unqualified success from every point of view and adds to the already long record of successful entertainments given by this prominent social and musical oversities. prominent social and musical organization.

The ladies and gentlemen began to arrive soon after 8 o'clock, and half an hour later the nicely and tastefully decorated hall was well filled with the guests, disguised in the raiment of prince and pauper, soldier and sailor, lord high justice and prize fighter; princes and milk maid, titled lady and humble peasant. All mingled with the utmost good feeling, and the evening passed away with pleasure unbounded, the principal amusement being dancing, which was kept up until an early hour this morning.

The costumes were brilliant, and in most cases completely mystified those who were endeavoring to ascertain the identity of the maskers. The grand march was participated in by all the guests. Mr. Louis Stahl made a first class Prince of the Carnival, Miss Mary Quanc was a charming Princes of the Carnival. Comment on the Clown, Mr. John Horrish, is needless. He spoke and acted for himself, and occasionally his actions were louder than words.
